

CARING ABOUT OUR FUTURE...

Emory Conference Center Hotel ensures that your meeting is productive and not disruptive. Surrounded by the beauty of Hahn Woods, Emory Conference Center Hotel pledges to maintain a light footprint on the environment.

As a LEED Silver Certified conference center facility, the hotel incorporates sustainable practices into daily activities.

Stay in good conscience at one of the most eco-friendly hotels in Atlanta that incorporates the following practices:

- Employ single stream recycling which converts 41 tons of waste annually
- Food waste is transitioned into high quality compost
- Kitchen oils are recycled and converted into a bio-diesel fuel that is used to power Emory University buses
- Leftover soaps are recycled through Clean the World
- All lighting sources are updated and energy efficient
- All paint is low VOC
- All appliances are energy efficient
- Gently used linens and uniforms are donated to organizations for reuse
- Bicycles are available for guest use on a complimentary basis
- Public transportation and walking is encouraged with maps, and directions are provided

Emory Conference Center Hotel's earth-friendly approach not only helps to save the planet, but ensures resources for future generations.
